References:

Can Novices Be Masters? Cognition and Instruction, 10 (4), 281-333.

http://writingcorner.com/young/shortstory-1.htm

Helmers, M. H. (1994). Writing students: composition, testimonials, and

Urbana, IL: National Conference on Research in English/ERIC Clearinghouse on Reading and Communication Skills.

Hunt, K. W. (1965). Grammatical structures written at three grade levels (Revised University of Illinois, Curriculum Laboratory, Urbana.

In A. C. Purves (Ed.) Writing across Languages and Cultures. Issues in

look at East and West. In L. Samovar & R. E. Porter (Eds.). Intercultural

Jiang, Yan-qiut. (2002). A study of picture-elicited narratives for developing junior high school students’ English writing competence. Master’s thesis, National Chengchi University.

Maranda, J. M. & Maranda, N. S. (1970). *Structural models in folklore and Murphy, P. (2003). Discovering the ending in the beginning. Language Arts, 80 (6), 461-469.

University Press.

