I would like to thank my advisor, Professor Chou Whei-Ming 周惠民, for all his time and guidance through not only this thesis project but also my career as a master's student at National ChengChi University 國立政治大學. I would also like to thank Professors Chang Juinn-Yih 張駿逸 and Kang Pei-De 康培德 for being part of my thesis committee. I'd like to thank Professor David Blundell for his help in earlier stages and incarnations of this paper. My deepest appreciation goes out to Callum Sawatzky, who has been a wonderful research partner and a loyal friend when I needed him during times of crises. Frank Thiart has also been a guiding light in my life these past few years and I would not be who I am without him. I would also like to thank National ChengChi University 國立政治大學, and specifically the International Master's of Taiwan Studies Office for giving me the opportunity to study in this program. Finally I would like to thank the country of Taiwan for giving me a wonderful home for the past 8 years.
